Cook, HI

This is a leasehold property.
Now available is your chance to purchase a 35-year lease on one of two coffee lots overlooking the serene coastline and stunningly beautiful Kealakekua Bay. The upper portion of these lots provides the ideal setting to build a home with a magnificent view of the bay and the chance to enjoy great weather year-round. The elevation is perfect for cool breezes, yet not too much rain.
 Lot 85 is a 7.3-acre tract of land that can also be purchased with the adjacent Lot 86 a 6.2-acre tract of land. The lots are fully planted with mature coffee and maintained by a land management company ensuring a healthy production of coffee cherry. The coffee farm is installed with drip lines to insure good harvest independent of weather. The last two years the 7.3 acres produced between 28,000 to 33,000 pounds of cherry. (Cherry is the fruit of the coffee plant that contains the coffee beans.) The lessee / homeowner can participate in the revenue generated by each year's harvest.
The lots are in an area known as Captain Cook, named after the English Captain James Cook who arrived on the Big Island in 1779. There is a good chance that with the proper house orientation and elevation you could see the Cook monument from this lot.
History of Kealakekua Bay
Kealakekua Bay, located about 12 miles south of Kailua-Kona, has a rich history spanning over a thousand years. It was a significant cultural and social hub for ancient Hawaiians. The bay's name, meaning "the path of the gods," reflects its deep spiritual importance, particularly as a site for the annual Makahiki festival honoring the fertility god Lono. Today Kealahou Bay is known for its historical significance, kayaking, snorkeling and paddle surfing.
